I. Course Description

This course introduces students to governance, politics and political development in the Middle East. The course first provides a brief history of politics in the region and next it concentrates on government and politics since the First World War. How sovereign states emerged in the Middle East? How traditionalism, colonialism, Islamism, and nationalism affected governance and politics in the region? Why the Middle East is unstable? What are the sources of conflicts, rebellions, and state failure in this region? Is there any solutions for the ongoing instabilities and conflicts? In this course, we address such questions and study a range of political issues and topics that influence politics and governance both in the Middle East and in specific countries. The issues covered in this course includes religion, European colonialism, state-building, Islamism, modernism, nationalism, Zionism, political development during the Cold War and post-Cold War era, revolutions and coup d'états, oil, conflict, democratization, and terrorism. Although it is impossible to examine all single country in the region within the parameters of a term-length course, the course will provide students with historical, theoretical, and analytical tools and examples that enable them to study any case of their interest.

II. Course Structure/Class Format

- A short lecture to provide a framework for understanding the issues under discussion
- A thematic discussion about a specific issue, country, or group of countries highlighted in the lecture
- An open class debate, or presentation with reference to both the required readings and broader observations

III. Readings

- James L. Gelvin (2016). The Modern Middle East: A History. Fourth edition. New York and Oxford: Oxford University Press.
- Mehran Kamrava (2013). The Modern Middle East: A Political History Since the First World War. Third edition. Berkley and Los Angeles: University of California Press.

Required readings are available at the Carleton University Book Store. Supplementary readings are available electronically on the Carleton University Library website and other websites.

IV. Course Evaluation

Course evaluation includes class attendance and participation, an essay proposal, a final essay, a final exam and will be calculated on the following basis:

A) Class Attendance & Participation (15%)

All classes.

Students are expected to attend the classes and participate in class discussions and debates. Every week there will be a special concentration on a specific issue or country that students are required to discuss in groups and/or with the class.

B) Essay Proposal (15%)

Due as hard copy and in class, February 6.

A proposal is an introduction to the course's term paper and should present a topic that a student wants to research in their term paper. Proposals should clearly address three main questions as follows: what is the topic of your research? How do you research it? Why is the proposed topic worth researching? In this manner, a good proposal should clearly state the topic, introduce the literature and the literature gap, and make a clear argument and develop it based on reliable/scholarly sources. Every proposal should contain:

- An introduction to the topic
- A research question
- A hypothesis, or a central argument, or a thesis statement
- An explanation about the significance of the question and argument (Is there a literature gap? Or, is the topic new?)
- A potential bibliography of 10-12 scholarly sources (including books/book chapters, journal articles, or previous research). These sources will be used for writing the final essay.

Proposals should not exceed 4-5 pages (double-spaced in 12-point font), including everything but not the cover page.

C) Essay (30%)

Due as hard copy and in class, April 2.

Students are required to address and critically assess a specific issue relevant to politics and governance in the Middle East or in a specific country located in the region. Essays should be expanded on the proposals that students have already submitted and be based on the 10-12 sources that are introduced in the proposals. Students can also supplement their papers with media or other contents if needed, but this should be discussed with the instructor in advance. In the essay, students must express what they clearly think of the issue or the country and how their finding contributes to our knowledge on the Middle East and/or the country they have studied. Essays should be 10-12 pages excluding bibliography and endnotes (double-spaced in 12-point font), though quality, not length, will be the criterion for evaluation. Essays should critically engage with the literature and develop a clear argument about an issue in the region or in a specific country. Essays that are a simple summarization of the literature, lack a central argument, and incapable of connecting the argument to the finding and evidence will receive a lower grade. You can use MLA,

APA, or Chicago Manual of Style citation in your papers, but every essay should use one single style constantly.

D) Final Exam (40%)

The final exam will be scheduled during the formal exam period.

V. Submission Policy

Research proposals and papers are due as hard copy and must be submitted in class. E-mailed assignments will not be accepted. Late submissions will be penalized on a daily basis (i.e. 5% of the overall grade for the assignment per day). Extensions will be granted only in cases of special circumstances based on verifiable documentation.

Academic Accommodations

Requests for Academic Accommodation

You may need special arrangements to meet your academic obligations during the term. For an accommodation request, the processes are as follows:

Pregnancy obligation

Please contact your instructor with any requests for academic accommodation during the first two weeks of class, or as soon as possible after the need for accommodation is known to exist. For more details, visit the Equity Services website: carleton.ca/equity/wp-content/uploads/Student-Guide-to-Academic-Accommodation.pdf

Religious obligation

Please contact your instructor with any requests for academic accommodation during the first two weeks of class, or as soon as possible after the need for accommodation is known to exist. For more details, visit the Equity Services website: carleton.ca/equity/wp-content/uploads/Student-Guide-to-Academic-Accommodation.pdf

Academic Accommodations for Students with Disabilities

If you have a documented disability requiring academic accommodations in this course, please contact the Paul Menton Centre for Students with Disabilities (PMC) at 613-520-6608 or pmc@carleton.ca for a formal evaluation or contact your PMC coordinator to send your instructor your Letter of Accommodation at the beginning of the term. You must also contact the PMC no later than two weeks before the first in-class scheduled test or exam requiring accommodation (if applicable). After requesting accommodation from PMC, meet with your instructor as soon as possible to ensure accommodation arrangements are made.

Plagiarism

The University Senate defines plagiarism as “presenting, whether intentional or not, the ideas, expression of ideas or work of others as one’s own.” This can include:

- reproducing or paraphrasing portions of someone else’s published or unpublished material, regardless of the source, and presenting these as one’s own without proper citation or reference to the original source;
- submitting a take-home examination, essay, laboratory report or other assignment written, in whole or in part, by someone else;
- using ideas or direct, verbatim quotations, or paraphrased material, concepts, or ideas without appropriate acknowledgment in any academic assignment;
- using another’s data or research findings;
- failing to acknowledge sources through the use of proper citations when using another’s works and/or failing to use quotation marks;
- handing in "substantially the same piece of work for academic credit more than once without prior written permission of the course instructor in which the submission occurs.

Plagiarism is a serious offence which cannot be resolved directly with the course’s instructor. The Associate Deans of the Faculty conduct a rigorous investigation, including an interview with the student, when an instructor suspects a piece of work has been plagiarized. Penalties are not trivial. They may include a mark of zero for the plagiarized work or a final grade of "F" for the course.

Student or professor materials created for this course (including presentations and posted notes, labs, case studies, assignments and exams) remain the intellectual property of the author(s). They are intended for personal use and may not be reproduced or redistributed without prior written consent of the author(s).

Submission and Return of Term Work

Papers must be submitted directly to the instructor according to the instructions in the course outline and will not be date-stamped in the departmental office. Late assignments may be submitted to the drop box in the corridor outside B640 Loeb. Assignments will be retrieved every business day at 4 p.m., stamped with that day's date, and then distributed to the instructor. For essays not returned in class please attach a stamped, self-addressed envelope if you wish to have your assignment returned by mail. Final exams are intended solely for the purpose of evaluation and will not be returned.

Grading

Standing in a course is determined by the course instructor, subject to the approval of the faculty Dean. Final standing in courses will be shown by alphabetical grades. The system of grades used, with corresponding grade points is:

Percentage	Letter grade	12-point scale	Percentage	Letter grade	12-point scale
90-100	A+	12	67-69	C+	6
85-89	A	11	63-66	C	5
80-84	A-	10	60-62	C-	4
77-79	B+	9	57-59	D+	3
73-76	B	8	53-56	D	2
70-72	B-	7	50-52	D-	1

Approval of final grades

Standing in a course is determined by the course instructor subject to the approval of the Faculty Dean. This means that grades submitted by an instructor may be subject to revision. No grades are final until they have been approved by the Dean.

Carleton E-mail Accounts

All email communication to students from the Department of Political Science will be via official Carleton university e-mail accounts and/or cuLearn. As important course and University information is distributed this way, it is the student's responsibility to monitor their Carleton and cuLearn accounts.

Carleton Political Science Society

"The Carleton Political Science Society (CPSS) has made its mission to provide a social environment for politically inclined students and faculty.
