Course Description: This course examines the politics of Israel/Palestine. It would be customary in IR and political science when studying one country or region to consider it a “case” of something. But as we will see, the politics around Israel-Palestine is in large part animated by the contestation over such classification. Is it a case of protracted conflict? A case of settler-colonial oppression? A case of human rights violations? A case of competing nationalisms? The course will examine these competing (though not necessarily mutually-exclusive) frameworks. The course proceeds both chronologically and conceptually/thematically. Those without a basic knowledge of the case might wish to purchase a textbook to read early on. (Suggestions: those by Alan Dowty (Israel/Palestine, 4th ed.) or Smith (Palestine and the Arab-Israeli Conflict) or Neil Caplan (The Israel-Palestine Conflict: Contested Histories).) In addition, to further explore op-ed writing (and social media engagement, especially around sensitive topics), you may wish to get a copy of my book: Mira Sucharov, Public Influence: A Guide to Op-Ed Writing and Social Media Engagement (University of Toronto Press, 2019).

Books:
Sucharov, The International Self: Psychoanalysis and the Search for Israeli-Palestinian Peace
Hahn Tapper & Sucharov, eds., Social Justice and Israel/Palestine: Foundational and Contemporary Debates
Sucharov, Public Influence: A Guide to Op-Ed Writing and Social Media Engagement (optional)
Requirements:

Op-Ed 1: 25%
Op-Ed 2: 25%
Op-Ed 3: 25%
Attendance/Participation: 25%

Each student will serve as provocateur for one class session. The responsibility entails offering a short discussion opener plus some structuring questions to guide conversation.

Op-Eds:
This is a hybrid assignment. The argument of the actual op-ed text needs to stand on its own. But you must also provide extended footnote citations and commentary (including additional data, context and evidence) in the footnotes. Length: 750-850 words (op-ed) plus at least 12 footnotes (at least 6 of them with extended commentary of your own). Draw on readings and films from the syllabus as well as additional readings (both scholarly and news-style sources) you uncover on your own. Each op-ed must have a clear question identified and a clear argument (which is your answer to the question). Topic: a contemporary Israeli-Palestinian issue which you will attempt to explain/assess/illuminate based on some historical event or theme we are covering in the course. You are encouraged to create a prescriptive argument: what should actor x or y do about issue z? This may refer to Canadian, American, Israeli or Palestinian Authority (or Hamas) policy or actions, or else might refer to popular practices or ideas. A prescriptive argument focuses on the “ought” (what should happen?) based on an understanding of the “is” (what’s going on right now?). Draw on at least 10 sources, at least half of which should be scholarly ones. You can focus on the readings in the syllabus, and supplement them with others, if you wish. Note: the op-ed can also be structured around a film, provided you include the necessary research and context (as indicated above, through footnotes), and provided that you make a broader argument about the issues in play.

Op-Ed Due Dates: Choose three topics on which to write. Directions: draft the op-ed before the relevant class, polish it and edit it based on the in-class conversation, and then hand it in up to three days later. This will give you time to complete the readings for the next class.

Plagiarism
The University Senate defines plagiarism as “presenting, whether intentional or not, the ideas, expression of ideas or work of others as one’s own.” This can include:

- reproducing or paraphrasing portions of someone else’s published or unpublished material, regardless of the source, and presenting these as one’s own without proper citation or reference to the original source;
- submitting a take-home examination, essay, laboratory report or other assignment written, in whole or in part, by someone else;
- using ideas or direct, verbatim quotations, or paraphrased material, concepts, or ideas without appropriate acknowledgment in any academic assignment;
- using another’s data or research findings;
- failing to acknowledge sources through the use of proper citations when using another’s works and/or failing to use quotation marks;
- handing in "substantially the same piece of work for academic credit more than once without prior written permission of the course instructor in which the submission occurs.

Plagiarism is a serious offence which cannot be resolved directly with the course’s instructor. The Associate Deans of the Faculty conduct a rigorous investigation, including an interview with the student, when an instructor suspects a piece of work has been plagiarized. Penalties are not trivial. They may include a mark of zero for the plagiarized work or a final grade of "F" for the course.

Student or professor materials created for this course (including presentations and posted notes, labs, case studies, assignments and exams) remain the intellectual property of the author(s). They are intended for personal use and may not be reproduced or redistributed without prior written consent of the author(s).
