COURSE DESCRIPTION

This course explores the importance of feminist scholarship to the discipline of Political Science and the importance of political analysis to the interdisciplinary study of gender. The first of four sections offers an overview of Anglo-American feminist theory. This section poses questions such as how gender is constructed in various spatiotemporal sites, and what the dynamics of gender inequality are. The second section theorizes the category of gender as constituted from complex intersections with physical, sexual, cultural, racial, religious, national, and ethnic diversity; and raises questions about the meaning of categories and boundaries, and the possibility of feminist solidarity and political action. The third section discusses the centrality of gender in knowledge production and the exclusion of gender from political analysis, and invites further analysis of macropolitical processes and political agency of actors through gendered lenses. The fourth section turns to feminist political theory to debate questions of social justice that lie at the core of feminist theoretical and political interventions.

READINGS

All assigned readings are also available on library reserve. Readings marked with a (W) are available online.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS

You are expected to hand in two short-response papers during the semester. Each paper is worth 15 percent of the final grade and should be handed in on the day the material is covered in class. The paper should focus on issues related to the particular theme of the week, and respond critically to the discussion. In addition, your paper may also connect themes across one or more readings covered in other weeks. You should hand in your first paper before October 17.

You are required to write a 20–25 page research paper worth 40 percent of the final grade. Topics may include any issue relevant to the course; you are encouraged to select your topic in consultation with the instructor. Papers are expected to be handed in no later than December 13. Late papers and essays will be penalized by 2.5 marks per day. Late papers will only be exempted from penalty if supported by a medical certificate or other documentary evidence. For essays not returned in class, please attach a stamped, self-addressed envelope if you wish to have your assignment returned by mail. Please note that assignments sent via fax or email will not be accepted.

You are expected to attend and participate actively in all class discussions and complete the readings for each week. During the course, you will be responsible for presenting on two themes of your choice. Together, class participation, presentations, and attendance are worth 30 percent of the final grade.

For more information on academic accommodation, please contact the departmental administrator or visit: students.carleton.ca/course-outline

Plagiarism
The University Senate defines plagiarism as “presenting, whether intentional or not, the ideas, expression of ideas or work of others as one’s own.” This can include:

• reproducing or paraphrasing portions of someone else’s published or unpublished material, regardless of the source, and presenting these as one’s own without proper citation or reference to the original source;
• submitting a take-home examination, essay, laboratory report or other assignment written, in whole or in part, by someone else;
• using ideas or direct, verbatim quotations, or paraphrased material, concepts, or ideas without appropriate acknowledgment in any academic assignment;
• using another’s data or research findings;
• failing to acknowledge sources through the use of proper citations when using another’s works and/or failing to use quotation marks;
• handing in "substantially the same piece of work for academic credit more than once without prior written permission of the course instructor in which the submission occurs."
Plagiarism is a serious offence which cannot be resolved directly with the course’s instructor. The Associate Deans of the Faculty conduct a rigorous investigation, including an interview with the student, when an instructor suspects a piece of work has been plagiarized. Penalties are not trivial. They may include a mark of zero for the plagiarized work or a final grade of "F" for the course.

Student or professor materials created for this course (including presentations and posted notes, labs, case studies, assignments and exams) remain the intellectual property of the author(s). They are intended for personal use and may not be reproduced or redistributed without prior written consent of the author(s).

Submission and Return of Term Work

Papers must be submitted directly to the instructor according to the instructions in the course outline and will not be date-stamped in the departmental office. Late assignments may be submitted to the drop box in the corridor outside B640 Loeb. Assignments will be retrieved every business day at 4 p.m., stamped with that day's date, and then distributed to the instructor. For essays not returned in class please attach a stamped, self-addressed envelope if you wish to have your assignment returned by mail. Final exams are intended solely for the purpose of evaluation and will not be returned.

Grading

Standing in a course is determined by the course instructor, subject to the approval of the faculty Dean. Final standing in courses will be shown by alphabetical grades. The system of grades used, with corresponding grade points is:

Approval of final grades

Standing in a course is determined by the course instructor subject to the approval of the Faculty Dean. This means that grades submitted by an instructor may be subject to revision. No grades are final until they have been approved by the Dean.

Carleton E-mail Accounts

All email communication to students from the Department of Political Science will be via official Carleton university e-mail accounts and/or cuLearn. As important course and University information is distributed this way, it is the student’s responsibility to monitor their Carleton and cuLearn accounts.

Carleton Political Science Society
"The Carleton Political Science Society (CPSS) has made its mission to provide a social environment for politically inclined students and faculty. By hosting social events, including Model Parliament, debates, professional development sessions and more, CPSS aims to involve all political science students at Carleton University. Our mandate is to arrange social and academic activities in order to instill a sense of belonging within the Department and the larger University community. Members can benefit through our networking opportunities, academic engagement initiatives and numerous events which aim to complement both academic and social life at Carleton University.
