Course description
European integration represents the most advanced regional integration model. Thus, the European Union (EU)—a political and economic union of 28 member states—is the only supranational institutions of its kind in the world. This course is an introduction to the unique political system, decision-making processes, and governing institutions of the EU, as well as the ability of the Union to act externally. The course begins with the creation and development of European integration in the aftermath of the Second World War, explaining the causes and consequences of the EU as a peace model. The following sessions will focus on topics including the dominant theories of European integration, as well as the competencies and powers delegated to the EU institutions. Current challenges and the future of EU integration will be discussed and analyzed in class. Furthermore, students will learn about EU governance and the external affairs of the Union through a simulation exploring the body of rules, procedures and practices that relate to the way powers are exercised in the EU. Equipped with this knowledge and other theoretical toolboxes, students will replicate the bilateral relationship between the EU and Canada, in order to test the effectiveness of the EU as an actor in international relations.

Aristotle is quoted as having said: “For the things we have to learn before we can do them, we learn by doing them.” In order to support the wider experiential learning agenda of Carleton University, this course will provide an opportunity for learning through experience to help students to gain a better understanding of the material and to increase students’ interactions with the subject. Students will immerse themselves in an intergovernmental diplomacy simulation and replicate real-world scenarios by filling the roles of various actors. Students will participate in a simulation of the third meeting of the EU-Canada Joint Ministerial Committee (JMC) to discuss the progress of the Strategic Partnership Agreement (SPA) signed in October 2016. This exercise will enable students to connect to complex materials by experimenting with trial and error, applying theory in practice, as well as to more deeply comprehend the positions of the various actors.
Textbook

Learning outcomes
By the end of the course, the student should be able to:

- Demonstrate knowledge about the evolution of political and economic integration in Europe
- Discuss the approaches and theories of European integration
- Distinguish and differentiate between the EU institutions and bodies
- Assess the influence of various actors and key stakeholders in European decision-making processes
- Simulate the conduct of foreign policy of the EU as an international actor
- Negotiate and adopt a bilateral declaration of strategic partnership between Canada and the European Union.

Grading details
Students must complete all evaluative elements to receive a passing grade. Students are required to attend each class, to read the literature assigned for each class, and to actively participate in class discussions and the simulation.

Midterm and final exams
There will be a midterm exam (40%) during the term and a final exam (40%) at the end of the course to assess your theoretical knowledge based on the core readings. Midterm and final exams will take advantage of multiple-choice test as a form of an objective assessment with dozens of questions and items. The questions and items will be closely related to the topics covered in the core reading for the classes. The students will determine and select the “true” answer among a set of options with one most correct and several incorrect answers (“distractors”) deriving from the required core readings. Students will be graded on their “correct” choices and no credit will be awarded for unanswered questions or if they select the wrong answer.

Position paper and simulation
The simulation will allow the students to have the opportunity to apply the skills learned throughout the semester and practice them in a quasi-diplomatic environment with real actors and stakeholders under the tutelage of the professor. For this assignment, the students will simulate the Joint Ministerial Committee meeting (e.g. GAC and other government departments of Canada, the European Commission, Ambassadors of the EU countries to Canada, Representatives of Provincial Governments etc.) and represent the interests of consumers, industry, and other key stakeholders. There will be a written assignment (15%) for this component during the term. The aim of the position paper is to prepare students to take a research-based position during the simulation as a supportive learning experience. Subject to the approval of the professor, students will identify their issue and role (as mentioned above), and draft the first position paper, before submitting the final version of the documents. Feedback will be provided by the instructor and the TA.

Word Limits. Position papers are required to be between 1000-1100 words (excluding footnotes and endnotes). No deviation is allowed. Rubrics for a position paper is available on CUlearn.

Your Position Paper must adhere to the following structure:
- Thesis statement – showing your position on the issue of your delegation’s concern
- Background information – the reasons why this issue is important
- Your delegation's involvement with the topic (the actions taken at the provincial, national and international levels)
- Actions taken by your delegation to solve the problem in the past (new policies, action plans to implement international resolutions and agreements)
- Closing paragraph: Possible solutions that your delegation plans to propose to advance their interests (the exact paragraph your delegation would like to be included in the 3rd Joint Declaration of the Canada-EU Strategic Partnership Agreement, to be negotiated by the Joint Ministerial Committee on the 11th of March)

Helpful tips: Using your own computer, open a Word file. Compose your Position Paper Draft. Save your file on your own computer. Then come back to cuLearn to cut and paste from your file. Having a copy saved on your computer will help you keep your work safe. If you compose directly in the text box on cuLearn, and you experience a network issue, you could lose all your work. You may want to follow these guidelines closely. Keeping your work safe is your responsibility.

No exceptions will be made for missing the deadlines and/or for work lost for any reason, including but not limited to technical issues, in fairness to all students.

Important deadlines:
- Position Paper: Identify Your Issue in the Simulation (Due date: Monday, 11 February 2019, 11:55 PM)
- Position Paper: First Draft (Due date: Saturday, 2 March 2019, 11:55 PM)
- Position Paper: The Final Document (Due date: Saturday, 9 March 2019, 11:55 PM)
- Presenting Your Position Paper (Simulation date: Monday, 11 March 2019, 08:30 AM)
Community outreach
The students of this class will be involved in communicating their knowledge to their community as they learn from the course throughout the semester. Students are welcome to propose their own community outreach activities.

Alternatively, you may want to use the following prompt:

Develop a brief social media message, share with your community, and attach the screenshot of your outreach activity e.g. social media post on cuLearn by Friday of each week. You will need to post one each week for one mark. Please note that you will not receive 5% for each weekly post. There will be a minimum requirement of 10 posts, worth 5% for the entire semester towards your total grade. Feel free to post more than once per week. You are encouraged to share as you learn with your community through social media. Sharing is caring!

Important notes:
- Students must actively participate in the final simulation (March 11th) and complete all evaluative elements to receive a passing grade.
- Please arrive at least 15 minutes prior to the beginning of the simulation as well as the midterm and final exams to allow enough time to orderly sign-in and sign-out after you hand in the exam papers to the professor before leaving the exam room very quietly.

Plagiarism
The University Senate defines plagiarism as “presenting, whether intentional or not, the ideas, expression of ideas or work of others as one’s own.” This can include:

• reproducing or paraphrasing portions of someone else’s published or unpublished material, regardless of the source, and presenting these as one’s own without proper citation or reference to the original source;
• submitting a take-home examination, essay, laboratory report or other assignment written, in whole or in part, by someone else;
• using ideas or direct, verbatim quotations, or paraphrased material, concepts, or ideas without appropriate acknowledgment in any academic assignment;
• using another’s data or research findings;
• failing to acknowledge sources through the use of proper citations when using another’s works and/or failing to use quotation marks;
• handing in "substantially the same piece of work for academic credit more than once without prior written permission of the course instructor in which the submission occurs.

Plagiarism is a serious offence which cannot be resolved directly with the course’s instructor. The Associate Deans of the Faculty conduct a rigorous investigation, including an interview with the student, when an instructor suspects a piece of work has been plagiarized. Penalties are not trivial. They may include a mark of zero for the plagiarized work or a final grade of "F" for the course.

Student or professor materials created for this course (including presentations and posted notes, labs, case studies, assignments and exams) remain the intellectual property of the author(s). They are intended for personal use and may not be reproduced or redistributed without prior written consent of the author(s).

Submission and Return of Term Work
Papers must be submitted directly to the instructor according to the instructions in the course outline and will not be date-stamped in the departmental office. Late assignments may be submitted to the drop box in the corridor outside B640 Loeb. Assignments will be retrieved every business day at 4 p.m., stamped with that day's date, and then distributed to the instructor. For essays not returned in class please attach a stamped, self-addressed envelope if you wish to have your assignment returned by mail. Final exams are intended solely for the purpose of evaluation and will not be returned.

Grading
Standing in a course is determined by the course instructor, subject to the approval of the faculty Dean. Final standing in courses will be shown by alphabetical grades. The system of grades used, with corresponding grade points is:
