

PSCI 5915/INAF 5449

Special Topics in Political Science

“The Israeli/Palestinian Dispute”

The course provides an exploration of the issues, which affect the international community today, ranging from the establishment of the Mandate system to current prospects for peace negotiations. Focus on events, identity and socio-political movements, why they happen and how they develop, their significance, including for the situation today: cause, effect and consequence, with a view to sustainable policy prescriptions. The instructor will provide context, background and lessons learned from his own experience, based on ambassadorial appointments in the region including Jordan, Israel (2x) and Egypt.

Instructor:	Michael Bell
Schedule:	January to April 2016
Time:	Tuesdays 18:00-20:50 SA 501