PARG (Professional Accounting Research Group)

Building on the expertise and experience of the accounting group and Sprott faculty, our Professional Accounting Research Group (PARG) currently has a twenty members, including Sprott PhD/MSc candidates in accounting.

The overarching goal of PARG is to advance the field of professional accounting through knowledge development and mobilization.

The objectives of PARG include:

- * advancing the accounting profession
 - o by actively encouraging and supporting research and innovation
 - o by producing high quality research
- * creating thought leadership
 - o by bringing together academia, industry, government, public accounting and CPAs with meaningful collaborative initiatives
 - o by collaborating in developing long-term mutually beneficial connections and partnerships

With a proper balance between theory and practice, PARG supports the Sprott School of Business' mission by facilitating a cross-disciplinary research environment to enable faculty and students to carry out leading-edge research on complex issues, and by working in partnership with organizations and institutions.
