COURSE DESCRIPTION

This course explores the ideas and beliefs associated with death and life after death as they are expressed in various religious and cultural traditions. Our study begins with small-scale tribal beliefs and moves on to concepts of death and afterlife as they developed in the ancient religions of Egypt and Mesopotamia. From there we will explore the development of these ideas in the traditions of Judaism, Christianity and Islam and finally the traditions of India and the Far East.

The objectives of this course are: to provide an understanding of the ways in which different religious traditions conceive of mortality and immortality; and to offer students the opportunity to examine their own conceptions of death and life after death.

##-regulations common to all humanities courses-

Copies of Written Work Submitted
Always retain for yourself a copy of all essays, term papers, written assignments or take-home tests submitted in your courses.

Plagiarism
The University Senate defines plagiarism as “presenting, whether intentional or not, the ideas, expression of ideas or work of others as one’s own.” This can include:

- reproducing or paraphrasing portions of someone else’s published or unpublished material, regardless of the source, and presenting these as one’s own without proper citation or reference to the original source;
- submitting a take-home examination, essay, laboratory report or other assignment written, in whole or in part, by someone else;
- using ideas or direct, verbatim quotations, or paraphrased material, concepts, or ideas without appropriate acknowledgment in any academic assignment;
- using another’s data or research findings;
- failing to acknowledge sources through the use of proper citations when using another’s works and/or failing to use quotation marks;
- handing in “substantially the same piece of work for academic credit more than once without prior written permission of the course instructor in which the submission occurs.”

Plagiarism is a serious offence which cannot be resolved directly with the course’s instructor. The Associate Deans of the Faculty conduct a rigorous investigation, including an interview with the student, when an instructor suspects a piece of work has been plagiarized. Penalties are not trivial. They can include a final grade of "F" for the course.

This supporting documentation must specify the date of onset of the illness, the degree of incapacitation, and the expected date of recovery.

Deferrals of assignments must be supported by confirmation of the assignment due date, for example a copy of the course outline specifying the due date and any documented extensions from the course instructor.
