Course Description:
This course examines theories and concepts related to the study of transnational, global and diasporic formations in the contemporary period. From studies of new economic, legal, cultural, and transnational movements, to emergent developments in theoretical approaches to these formations, this course explores scholarly approaches to the study of transnational flows and their limits.