Course Description:
An introduction to some of the main sociological theories developed since the end of the Second World War. Students are invited to gain knowledge of contemporary sociological theories by reading, analyzing and discussing excerpts from original texts. The purpose of this course is to better understand the history of sociology, the function of theories and concepts in sociological analysis, and the normative and political implications of sociological