COLLABORATIVE MASTER’S PROGRAM IN ASIA-PACIFIC STUDIES
APPLY BY FEBRUARY 1 FOR SEPTEMBER 2017 PROGRAM

Housed within the Asian Institute at the Munk School of Global Affairs in Canada’s premier research university, the Collaborative Master’s Program in Asia-Pacific Studies (MAPS) provides an interdisciplinary scholarly approach to the region and facilitates learning and intellectual exchange within a small group setting. Students are provided with advanced training in traditional disciplines as well as interdisciplinary expertise in historical and social science studies, laying the groundwork for doctoral study or global careers in government, business, or NGOs.

UNIQUE RESOURCES
Students benefit from the rich resources of the Asian Institute and Munk School:

- Over 40 affiliated faculty members who are leading scholars within the fields of geography, political science, sociology, East Asian Studies, history, anthropology, and more (see the complete list on our website)
- Funding opportunities including entrance awards for domestic students and research-related travel and language study scholarships
- Study spaces in the newly renovated MAPS Student Research Lab
- Membership in the Munk School Graduate Student Network
- Support and opportunities for extra-curricular involvement
Please note that this is not a standalone graduate program. Students wishing to be admitted to the collaborative program must apply online to one of the participating home departments. For more information about the application process, including a list of participating home department units, please visit the Application Procedures page. Check individual department websites for their application deadlines.
