DID YOU KNOW?
The University of Toronto has...

- 13,239 faculty members
- Been ranked best in Canada and among the top 20 in the world
- 22 million holdings across 44 libraries, employing 141 librarians
- 222 graduate level programs
- 9,000 students living in residence
- More than 800 student clubs

SOCIAL-CULTURAL

ANTHROPOLOGY

GRADUATE PROGRAMS

ALSO OFFERED BY THE ANTHROPOLOGY DEPARTMENT:

- Medical
- Linguistic and Semiotic
- Archaeology
- Evolutionary

FOCUS ON KATIE KILROY-MARAC

Professor Katie Kilroy-Marac studies the social history of psychiatric thought, the naturalization of psychiatric categories, and what happens when local understandings of illness and suffering come up against Western psychiatric science. Much of her work has focused on the Fann Psychiatric Clinic in Dakar, Senegal, and is the basis for her nearly completed book, An Impossible Inheritance: Postcolonial Psychiatry and the Work of Memory in a West African Clinic. Her article, “Speaking with revenants: Haunting and the ethnographic enterprise” appeared in Ethnography in 2014.

Her newest ethnographic project considers the emergence of Hoarding Disorder as a mental illness, a public health hazard, and a media spectacle. Concurrent reactions include the birth of a clutter-management industry, on the one hand, and consumption-critical “simple life” movements, on the other.

CONTACT US

19 Russell Street, Toronto, ON
M5S 2S2  (416) 978-5416
anthropology.graduate@utoronto.ca
www.anthropology.utoronto.ca

Cedars Sculpture by Walter Yarwood
WHAT CAN WE OFFER?

Why should you consider University of Toronto as a place to study Social-Cultural Anthropology? Our tremendous geographic range, theoretical diversity, and strong links with cognate disciplines and area studies make our department one of the best places in North America to study in this field. With our large group of cutting-edge researchers, we cover diverse topical clusters, including gender, sexuality and kinship, embodiment, the anthropology of citizenship, security and colonialism, of social movements, mobilization and welfare, and of religion and ritual and their interactions with science, technology, and media. Toronto anthropologists are also deeply involved in research pertaining to international development, land, labour, finance and capitalism, urban-rural relationships, and diasporas.

Faculty are extremely active in fieldwork in Europe and the Americas, and have strong clusters of field projects in Africa (Botswana, Kenya, Madagascar, Senegal, Sudan), and Asia and Melanesia (Papua New Guinea, India, Indonesia, Vietnam, Korea, and Philippines).

The Anthropology department strongly encourages students to carry out long-term field research and provides opportunities for ethnographic research all over the world and through the Ethnography Lab at the St. George campus and the Centre for Ethnography at University of Toronto Scarborough. Many of our doctoral students pursue year-long ethnographic work after their first two years and benefit from diverse funding sources to help them do so.

DOCTORAL PROGRAMS are primarily research degrees that culminate in the writing of a thesis. Minimum of one year residence in Toronto is required.

PhD DIRECT ENTRY STREAM
For students entering from a bachelor’s degree who have attained a CGPA of 3.85 or better.

PhD REGULAR STREAM
For students entering with a Master’s degree.

MASTER’S PROGRAMS are course based programs that culminate in the writing of a Master’s Research paper (MRP). Part-time or full-time study is available.

MASTER OF ARTS – 12-month program

MASTER OF SCIENCE – 24-month program

FOCUS ON YOUR CAREER

What can you do with your graduate degree? Many of our students go on to academic careers at universities and colleges in Canada, the U.S. and prestigious universities worldwide. Others go on to private sector work related to their discipline.

Our program offers a selection of professional development workshops and training opportunities to help you explore various career paths so you can take your career to the next level. Whether you choose an academic or private sector career, we will get you on the right track to success.

Students are encouraged to contact faculty members with whom they share research interests prior to submitting an application. Please visit www.anthropology.utoronto.ca and click the PEOPLE tab for a list of our graduate faculty members.

SUPPORTING DOCUMENTS

All university transcripts, at least two academic reference letters and a statement of interest. English language proficiency may be required. Further details available at www.anthropology.utoronto.ca – click GRADUATE PROGRAMS tab then PROSPECTIVE STUDENTS tab.

DEADLINES

• PhD program – December 6, 2017
• Master’s program – January 19, 2018

FUNDING

Funding is provided to all full-time graduate students admitted to the program. A minimum level of funding is ensured through a mix of fellowship, support teaching and research assistantships. Students are afforded many opportunities to apply for additional funding. Awards for conferences, fieldwork travel and dissertation writing are available and students are advised of such opportunities throughout the program. External awards are also available and students are encouraged to apply for these prestigious awards.

MASTER’S PROGRAMS: funding for one year in the program is ensured.

PhD PROGRAMS: direct entry stream – funding for five years is ensured; regular stream – funding for four years is ensured. For more information visit: www.anthropology.utoronto.ca/graduate/funding-support/guaranteed-minimum-funding/