SOCI 2001A
Introduction to Qualitative Research Methods

Instructor	Laura Hall
Term	Fall 2024
Course Delivery	In Person
Email Address	LauraJ.Hall@carleton.ca

COURSE DESCRIPTION

This course will deal with qualitative research methods and methodologies. In this course, we will focus specifically on building understanding and engagement with decolonial theory, settler colonial studies, framework development, methods vs methodology, research ethics, and qualitative methodologies (though we will discuss some overlap with quantitative methods). By the end of this course, students will be able to critically engage with research concepts, review readings, take good notes on lecture/discussion material, and synthesize information in small written assignments.
