

SOC1001E INTRODUCTION TO SOCIOLOGY I

Instructor	Gabrielle Duval
Term	Winter 2025
Course Delivery	In person
Email Address	gabrielleduval@cunet.carleton.ca

COURSE DESCRIPTION

What is the field of Sociology and how can it be studied? How can we apply these topics and theories in the current context of society? In this course, we will explore the field of Sociology by focusing on the everyday world of lived experiences and social relations. We will cover topics such as theories, methods, class, gender, sexuality, race, and social interactions. The main objectives for the course are to gain an understanding of the history of sociology (theories, theorists), to understand how we study the field of Sociology, and lastly, be able to apply the course content to current social issues.

EVALUATION

Evaluation Breakdown
Assignments	Percentage of Grade	Due Dates
Participation	10%	Weekly, Ongoing
Test 1	20%	February 4
Assignment 1: Research Proposal	10%	February 25
Test 2	20%	March 11
Final Assignment: Research Paper	40%	April 8

TEXT

Textbook: Little, W. (2023). Introduction to Sociology: 3rd Canadian Edition (3rd ed.). BCcampus. This textbook can be found for free on the BCcampus website and will be available on Brightspace. <https://collection.bccampus.ca/textbooks/introduction-to-sociology-3rd-canadian-edition-bccampus-413/>