

CARLETON UNIVERSITY
DEPARTMENT OF SOCIOLOGY AND ANTHROPOLOGY

SOCI 4020A/ANTH 4020A
Fall 2025
ADVANCED STUDIES IN RACE AND ETHNICITY

Instructor: Amina Mire
Email: amina.mire@carleton.ca

Method of Delivery: In-person

Course Description:

This advanced seminar aims to provide learners with advanced level understanding about salient theories and methodologies pertaining to the studies of race and ethnicities and racialization, and settler colonialism in contemporary context and uses decolonizing and interdisciplinary pedagogical approach. The seminar seeks to enhance learners' analytic skills in theorizing the intersectionality to how categories of race, racialization, ethnicity are socially, discursively and legally created and how these categories shapes broader social inclusion and exclusion in the Canadian and global contexts. The seminar also aims at enhancing learners' written and oral communication skills.

Reading (s)/Textbook (s):

Required readings for this seminar are journal articles, book chapters, feature films, short videos and newspaper articles which are accessible electrically via the Brightspace course homepage under ARES Reserves icon. You could access all the assigned materials electronically anytime.

Course Requirements & Methods of Evaluation:

Literature review: 20%
In-Class Presentations 20%
First draft of the Final Essays: 15%

Final essay: 45%.