

SOCI 3210C
“Telling About Society”: Creative Approaches to the Social Sciences

Instructor	Billy (William) Flynn
Term	Fall 2025
Course Delivery	In Person
Email Address	WilliamFlynn3@cunet.carleton.ca

COURSE DESCRIPTION

Have you ever encountered research in an academic book or article that you thought should be made more publicly available to a non-expert audience? Do you like reading graphic novels, comics, listening to podcasts or radio-plays, or watching user-generated content on YouTube or TikTok?

In this course we will explore, reflect upon and learn how to practically use and develop a wide range of multi-media methods (e.g., visual and audio storytelling) for creating and communicating social knowledge and research findings to experts and non-experts alike. We will draw upon, in part, research conducted by faculty from Carleton’s Sociology and Anthropology department, and together we will explore and develop creative ways to ‘tell about society’