DEPARTMENT OF SOCIOLOGY AND ANTHROPOLOGY

Sociology 3060/DBST 3060
Fall 2025
Critical Disability Studies

Instructor: Alexis Shotwell

Office Hours: by appointment through <https://calendly.com/alexis-shotwell>, or email me if the times listed there don't work for you.

Email: alexis.shotwell@carleton.ca

Time: Tuesdays, 11:35-2:25

Pre-requisites & Precluded Courses: SOCI 1001 and SOCI 1002, or SOCI 1003 [1.0], or ANTH 1001, or ANTH 1002, and third year standing

Method of Delivery: In person

Course Description and Objectives:

Course engages contemporary disability theory, culture, and activism to consider bodily difference and its relation to the workings of power and social control, accessibility, normalization, ableism, and medicalization. Students will gain an understanding of the contemporary debates, theories, and methodologies of critical disability studies.

In this class, we will theorize disability as a social relation entangling material, conceptual, cultural, political, and affective matters. Our approach begins from and returns to variation and deviance among our bodies and minds, but rejects the idea that disability is a durable individual, physical, medical problem. Rather, we will investigate how disability is made and how it is lived always in co-production with place, history, race, class, citizenship status, age, sexuality, and more. And we'll look at the shifting formations of disability as it includes neurodivergence, madness, illness, health, and flourishing into the future. We'll include theory, poetry, art and cultural praxis, activist work, and memoir. We'll ask: What might disability justice mean, and how can critical theory help us manifest it?

Learning Outcomes:

Students will leave this course with an improved understanding of disability methods, increased capacity to engage key concepts and debates in critical disability studies, and a solid grounding in the applicability of disability frameworks in their broader studies.

Readings:

All course readings will be available electronically through the university library and Brightspace.

Closing the class

General comments

- ✿ Learning during an ongoing pandemic, multiple wars, genocide, and in a world that is not okay: We can anticipate that the world will continue to be very stressful, and that we'll all be doing our best. It is meaningful and good to read, think, talk, and learn in this time, and because we're collectively experiencing difficult and traumatic ongoing world-historical events we need to take care and give room to the reality we're facing. I know that many of you have care giving responsibilities – for kids, loved ones, or elders – and that your own challenges are almost certainly spiking. I'm hoping that our class can be a space for nourishment rather than stress during this time, helping us think productively about how we collectively build capacity, understanding, and new worlds.
- ✿ Welcoming classroom: In this classroom, we collectively – students, any visitors, and teacher - try to make sure that everyone is safe enough to be present, learn, and share their understanding of course material. This means that talk or behavior that disrespects or demeans others is not accepted. For example, rape jokes, racist comments, the expressions "that's retarded" or "that's so gay" would be inappropriate. We all will refer to one another using correct names and pronouns. In some cases we'd talk about anything that comes up on the spot, and in other cases it could be addressed outside of class. As needed in relation to the readings we do and discussion we have I will aim to provide regular and appropriate content and trigger warnings, and welcome your input on what I can do to make this class workable for you.

- ✿ In this course, you are expected to learn from your texts, your teacher and from one another. This requires striving towards understanding each other but it does not imply striving towards finding agreement. Our class will be racially, religiously, politically, culturally, generationally, and economically diverse. We will be of different gender identifications and sexual orientations and our lived experiences and reactions to the course material will reflect this diversity. Sharing our perspectives and interpretations on the course material will enhance everyone's learning experience and you are encouraged to openly express any disagreements with the authors you will read, with your fellow classmates, or with the Professor in the different participation fora that are available for this course. However, you are expected to conduct yourself in such a way that shows the utmost respect to others who may – or may not – share your views. Derogatory comments and hateful behavior towards others (and their views) will not be tolerated.
- ✿ Carleton University acknowledges the location of its campus on the traditional, unceded territories of the Algonquin nation. In doing so, Carleton acknowledges it has a responsibility to the Algonquin people and a responsibility to adhere to Algonquin cultural protocols.
- ✿ Specifically about thinking about disability: We are creating a space for thinking about disability – what it is, what it does. We will be a complex classroom with lots of different experiences of disability and access needs. I, and we, will certainly make mistakes over the course of this term. Most of our experience in academia will have primed this to be a scary and daunting thing. The potential harms of fuck ups are unevenly distributed in the classroom, so we'll be building – and revisiting – collective agreements and practices for how we'll minimize those harms and find space for repair when they happen.
- ✿ Participation: My experience is that classes are fruitful and delightful when most of the people in the group are actively engaged in the discussion, either talking or listening. Practically speaking, I will expect all of us to be mindful of our speech; those of you who tend to wander far afield in discussion, or talk too much, or too little, please monitor yourselves and work with me and the others in the class to stay on course, develop your listening skills, or weigh into the discussion. We each have wonderful things to contribute to the class – according one another and ourselves equal significance in this shared space will make for a good experience for everyone.
- ✿ If you have any trouble with the readings, completing work on time, or any aspect of the course, don't hesitate to email or phone me. I try to respond to all email within 48 hours, though I don't respond to work email on the weekends.
- ✿ The very best way to get answers to questions you have is to ask them on Brightspace, so that everyone can benefit from your questions and share answers.

ASSESSMENT & FINAL GRADES

In this class, you are required to produce everything you turn in yourself, and to do your own writing and thinking for in-class work. No use of LLM/chatbots/"generative AI" or other automated assistance is permitted. Please see the class's "chatbot policy" for details on why this is my policy in this course.

This class has a “menu of options” approach. You can think of this as like going to Subway or a poke bowl place, and deciding what to have on your bread or rice, and what protein, veggies, and sauces to have condiments to use. Part A, self reflections, are your base. The substance of your meal is Part B, and then it’s up to you how much of menu options part C you want to do. Another way to think about this is that this class has a large number of extra credit points, and you decide which you want to do to get the grade you’re aiming for.

The basic idea here is to give you the flexibility to choose what engagement with this material will best support your own learning goals and life. If you know that you vastly prefer doing large projects worth a lot of points, and you would like to receive a B- in the course, you could choose to do the exam and the summative project, along with the required reflections, and receive a score of 70, or a grade of B-. If you prefer to do short, manageable weekly work that keeps you engaged with the class in a low-stakes and ongoing way, you could plan to do the self-reflections and complete many of the weekly assignments to receive a score of up to 80% and a grade of A. Or you could do some weekly assignments and one of the longer end of term options. It is up to you. There is no way to receive an A+ without doing some regular assignments and a summative assignment, however.

We will be using a pass/no pass grading approach for most of the assignments in this class. This means that for everything except the take-home and summative assignment options we will evaluate only whether you have done or not done the assignments or tasks – you will pass or not pass each assignment. we commit to telling you this directly and clearly (so, for example, if you respond to an assignment without sufficient engagement, we will tell you so and give you direction for revision). If you receive a “no pass” on any assignment you are welcome to use a token to revise it within one week to bring it to a satisfactory level. We will give you responsive feedback rather than letter grades on the work in progress, and a summative final letter grade based on the work you completed in the course overall. You decide what letter grade you get and do the work required for that grade.

All assignments will be turned in through Brightspace. They are due at the start of class time (11:25 on Tuesdays).

Category 1: Self-Reflection & Basic Participation – max 20%

Attendance & participation	10x @ 2 point	20 points	P/NP
Self-reflections	3x @ 3 points	10 points	P/NP
		30 possible points

Category 2: Reading Preparation, Content Engagement, & Writing Process – max 60%

Quotes That Struck me	11 @ 2 point	22 points	P/NP
Class report-back	6 @ 4 points	24 points	P/NP
In-class writing	6 @ 2 points	12 points	P/NP
Final exam	1 @ 20 points	20 points	Conventionally graded

		78 possible points
--	--	--------------------	--

Category 3: Higher Order Analytical and Research Skills – max 20%

Paper proposal	250 words	1 point	P/NP (you must pass this stage to go on)
Earnest half-draft	5 pages or equivalent in your writing practice	1 point	P/NP (you must pass this stage to go)
Long paper	10-12 pages	20 points	Conventional Grade scale
		22 possible points

For the long paper: You must pass each developmental segment (proposal and earnest progress) to turn in a final project, and the proposal and halfway marks are only counted if you do a final version. In other words, this is not a project that you can do in a last-minute push. Not everyone who submits a proposal will be approved to write a final paper. You should only do a proposal and first draft if you are actually planning to complete the project. Please see the assignment sheet for more explanation. No revisions are possible for the final draft of your paper. We will be reading and commenting on your papers electronically. Please use the following format when you name your documents if you are uploading them:

LastNameFirstName_AssignmentName_Date.

(For example: “ShotwellAlexis_LongPaper_Sept30”)

This helps me know whose paper I’m opening when I download the folder of assignments. Please also include your name on the first page of your written work. Non-paper submissions will go in the appropriate discussion section.

Citation Style: The Chicago author-date citation style (17th edition) is to be used in the assignments and papers of this course. For more information, please see:

https://www.chicagomanualofstyle.org/tools_citationguide/citation-guide-2.html

Due dates at a glance:

Attendance	Weekly
In-class writing	Periodic, in class – you will have more than six opportunities to earn the possible points
Quotes That Struck Me	Weekly
Class report-back	Periodic, up to six times during the term, dates depending on your preference
Self-reflections	Sept 16, Oct 14, and Nov 25
Long paper (10-12 pages) (see instruction sheet)	A 500 word proposal (due Oct 7th) Substantial progress amounting to half the work necessary for the project (due

	Nov 4th) Final due: Nov 24th

Tokens:

Each student will start the class with 3 virtual “tokens,” which you may spend as follows.

4-day extension on any written assignment	1 Token
Revision and resubmission of any assignment, except for the final paper.	1 Token. Revisions are due one week from receipt of my feedback.

Unused tokens at the end of the semester can be applied as free points (1 per token) to make up for absences. Tokens are a built-in pressure-valve to help you manage disruptions in your semester due to illness, injury, planning difficulties, or any of the other things that come up. These, combined with generous points allocation for pass/fail assignments, give you multiple pathways to success. You do not need to explain to me why you’re using a token. To use your tokens, please email me.

Additional Information

In accordance with the Carleton University Undergraduate Calendar Regulations, the letter grades assigned in this course will have the following percentage equivalents:

A+ = 90-100	B+ = 77-79	C+ = 67-69	D+ = 57-59
A = 85-89	B = 73-76	C = 63-66	D = 53-56
A - = 80-84	B - = 70-72	C - = 60-62	D - = 50-52
F= Below 50	WDN = Withdrawn from the course	DEF = Deferred

Academic Regulations, Accommodations, Plagiarism, Etc.

University rules regarding registration, withdrawal, appealing marks, and most anything else you might need to know can be found on the university’s website, here:

Carleton is committed to providing academic accessibility for all individuals. You may need special arrangements to meet your academic obligations during the term. The accommodation request processes, including information about the Academic Consideration Policy for Students in Medical and Other Extenuating Circumstances, are outlined on the Academic Accommodations website (<https://students.carleton.ca/course-outline/>). For an accommodation request, the processes are as follows:

Academic Accommodations for Students with Disabilities

The Paul Menton Centre for Students with Disabilities (PMC: <https://carleton.ca/pmc/>) provides services to students with Learning Disabilities (LD), psychiatric/mental health disabilities, Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD), Autism Spectrum Disorders (ASD), chronic medical conditions, and impairments in mobility, hearing, and vision. If you have a disability requiring academic accommodations in this course, please contact PMC at 613-520-6608 or pmc@carleton.ca for a formal evaluation. If you are already registered with the PMC, contact your PMC coordinator to send your Letter of Accommodation at the beginning of the term, and no later than two weeks before the first in-class scheduled test or exam requiring accommodation (if applicable).

*The deadline for contacting the Paul Menton Centre regarding accommodation for October/November examinations is October 1, 2025 and November 15, 2025 for December examinations.

For Religious Obligations:

Please contact your instructor with any requests for academic accommodation during the first two weeks of class, or as soon as possible after the need for accommodation is known to exist. For more details, visit the Equity Services website: www.carleton.ca/equity/wp-content/uploads/Student-Guide-to-Academic-Accommodation.pdf

For Pregnancy:

Please contact your instructor with any requests for academic accommodation during the first two weeks of class, or as soon as possible after the need for accommodation is known to exist. For more details, visit the Equity Services website: www.carleton.ca/equity/wp-content/uploads/Student-Guide-to-Academic-Accommodation.pdf

For Survivors of Sexual Violence

As a community, Carleton University is committed to maintaining a positive learning, working and living environment where sexual violence will not be tolerated, and where survivors are supported through academic accommodations as per Carleton's Sexual Violence Policy. For more information about the services available at the university and to obtain information about sexual violence and/or support, visit: www.carleton.ca/sexual-violence-support

Accommodation for Student Activities

Carleton University recognizes the substantial benefits, both to the individual student and for the university, that result from a student participating in activities beyond the classroom experience. Reasonable accommodation must be provided to students who compete or perform at the national or international level. Please contact your instructor with any requests for academic accommodation during the first two weeks of class, or as soon as possible after the need for accommodation is known to exist. <https://carleton.ca/senate/wp-content/uploads/Accommodation-for-Student-Activities-1.pdf>

Plagiarism

Plagiarism is the passing off of someone else's work as your own and is a serious academic offence. For the details of what constitutes plagiarism, the potential penalties and the procedures refer to the section on Instructional Offences in the Undergraduate Calendar. Students are expected to familiarize themselves with and follow the Carleton University Student Academic Integrity Policy (See <https://carleton.ca/registrar/academic-integrity/>). The Policy is strictly enforced and is binding on all students. Academic dishonesty in any form will not be tolerated. Students who infringe the Policy may be subject to one of several penalties.

What are the Penalties for Plagiarism?

A student found to have plagiarized an assignment may be subject to one of several penalties including but not limited to: a grade of zero, a failure or a reduced grade for the piece of academic work; reduction of final grade in the course; completion of a remediation process; resubmission of academic work; withdrawal from course(s); suspension from a program of study; a letter of reprimand.

What are the Procedures?

All allegations of plagiarism are reported to the faculty of Dean of FASS and Management. Documentation is prepared by instructors and departmental chairs. The Dean writes to the student and the University Ombudsperson about the alleged plagiarism. The Dean reviews the allegation. If it is not resolved at this level then it is referred to a tribunal appointed by the Senate.
