

CARLETON UNIVERSITY
DEPARTMENT OF SOCIOLOGY AND ANTHROPOLOGY

ANTHROPOLOGY AND GENDER
ANTH 2040B/SOCI 2820B
WINTER TERM 2026

Instructor: Verónica Vicencio Diaz

Method of Delivery: In-person Fridays 8:35-11:25 am.

Email: lizvicenciodiaz@cunet.carleton.ca

Office Hours: Fridays 12:00-1:00 pm or by appointment, Loeb Building A713.

In this course, you are expected to learn from your texts, your teacher and from one another. This requires striving towards understanding each other but it does not imply striving towards finding agreement. Our class will be racially, religiously, politically, culturally, generationally, and economically diverse. We will be of different gender identifications and sexual orientations and our lived experiences and reactions to the course material will reflect this diversity. Sharing our perspectives and interpretations on the course material will enhance everyone's learning experience and you are encouraged to openly express any disagreements with the authors you will read, with your fellow classmates, or with the professor in the different participation fora that are available for this course. However, you are expected to conduct yourself in such a way that shows the utmost respect to others who may – or may not – share your views. Derogatory comments and hateful behavior towards others (and their views) will not be tolerated.

Carleton University acknowledges the location of its campus on the traditional, unceded territories of the Algonquin nation. In doing so, Carleton acknowledges it has a responsibility to the Algonquin people and a responsibility to adhere to Algonquin cultural protocols.

Course Description:

Welcome! This course introduces students to the anthropological approaches to gender. Students will begin by learning how Anthropology engaged with feminisms from a historical perspective. Then, they will examine what has become the development of feminist anthropology, with particular attention to important theories, themes of study, and debates within the field. Among the themes of study, students will explore gender in relation to anthropological methods, like ethnographic work. As well, students will have the opportunity to engage in debates associated with gender and social construction, male dominance, queer identities, Indigenous feminisms, work, migration, globalization, and the intersectionalities of race, ethnicity, class, sex, sexuality and nationality. The course will conclude by analyzing feminist anthropology and its future implications.

Course Objectives:

- Learn about gender and its relation to cultural diversity.
- Evaluate how people distinguish themselves among genders in their beliefs and practices.
- Explore significant concepts, debates, and contributions to feminist anthropology, like Indigenous feminisms.
- Understand how cultural norms about gender and sexuality impact/shape people's lives.
- Analyze how gender articulates with other forms of difference such as race, ethnicity, sex, sexuality, class, and nationality.
- Improve students' analytical research, as well as reading, discussion, writing, and presentation skills.

Reading (s)/Textbook (s):

All materials will be freely available on Brightspace.

Week 13 April 8 — Take-Home Exam questions/answers.

Take-Home Exam will be posted on Brightspace prior to class.

April 23 Take-Home Exam due date.

Course Requirements & Methods of Evaluation:

Reading Responses	— 30% (Best 3 out of 4)
Class Attendance and Participation	— 20%
Discussion Questions	— 10% (5 Discussion Questions)
Final Project	— 40%
Take-Home Exam Research Draft Proposal	— 15% (February 13)
Take-Home Exam	— 25% (April 23)

All submissions are available in Brightspace and penalty for late submissions is one grade point per day (for example, from A to A-). Also, academic accommodations can be made by email in advance: lizvicensiodiaz@cunet.carleton.ca.

Reading Responses — 30%

Students will submit up to four reading responses, and only the best three will count for the final mark. Students will have the option to select the weeks in which they would like to submit their reading responses. On Thursday night (that means, by the end of the day, 11:59pm, prior to class), you will submit 400 to 600 word-long reflections based on the weekly reading/material assigned for the following day. The kinds of questions you can answer in your responses may be, what did you learn about the week's topic from these materials? What did you think about the perspectives offered by the author(s)? What ideas spoke to you the most? Why? Did you have a favourite text? Why? By contrast, is there an idea proposed by an author that you are critical of, how so? Be sure to draw on specific examples and specific ideas from the readings.

Class Attendance and Participation — 20%

Students are encouraged to attend every class and participate regularly. It is expected from students to take an active role in learning and sharing knowledge. Attendance will be taken for every class, and your participation, including the quality of your contributions to the discussion, will be evaluated. Participation means coming to class prepared, contributing regularly to the discussion, actively listening, and engaging thoughtfully with others' views related to the weekly topics. On the first day of class, students will form their own groups and use such groups to work on the different activities required in the course. It is essential that you arrive to our class on Fridays having completed the readings assigned for each week. While some grades are awarded for regular attendance, most of your participation grade is derived from your relevant and regular input during class participation. As well, while considering unexpected life events, you can be absent up to two weeks without any repercussions to this portion of your participation marks.

Discussion Questions — 10%

During the weeks that students choose not to submit reading responses, they are encouraged to select one weekly reading and post one paragraph (80 words approximately) followed by one discussion question in the Discussion Questions section in Brightspace. The entry should be informal but should be specific enough to reflect you have done some deeper thinking about the text. As well, the entry should be done at anytime prior to class (for example, for Week 2 Friday, January 16, students can post a discussion question as early as Friday, January 9 and until Thursday January 15, the night prior to class). Students should post at least five discussion questions with an entry worth of 2% of your final grade.

Research Draft Proposal — 15% (February 13)

A Research Draft Proposal is a general description of what your final paper/project (Take-Home Exam) will address. It should identify a clearly defined research topic, the main points you expect to explore and how such points will be addressed. Thus, at the proposal stage, students will submit a paper 2 pages long (300-600 words double-spaced approximately, 12 pt. font, and 1-inch margins) plus 1 page long annotated bibliography with three entries (each entry consisting of 100 words each approximately, single space, 12 pt. font, and 1-inch margins) based on the research work chosen for your final project. It must include a clear description and definition of the chosen anthropological work on gender, a brief outline of what you will discuss in the final paper and how this research/topic relates to themes from the course. The proposal, for example, will address anthropological accounts on history, space, gender construction, practices, politics, research, experiences, ways of seeing the world, etcetera. The proposal must be written in full sentences, double-spaced, and 12 font word format. Further guidelines for the Research Draft Proposal and annotated bibliography will be provided in class.

Take-Home Exam — 25% (April 23)

Students will be able to work/modify and/or expand their Research Draft Proposal to prepare an individual research paper based on a selected anthropological topic on gender. The aim of the research paper (7-8 pages, 2500-2750 words approximately, double-spaced, 12 pt. font, and 1-inch margins) is for students to analyze, at a deeper level, a topic of their own interest related to our main topic, Anthropology and Gender. Likewise, the goal is for students to continue building-up their own critical analysis, critical thinking and writing skills. In this research paper, students will be able to apply their newly-gained knowledge on gender and gender perspectives as well as their understanding related to the intrinsic relation between gender and anthropology.

The Take-Home Exam must be submitted through Brightspace in Microsoft Word format by midnight on April 23rd (11:59pm). Assignments submitted in any other format will not be accepted. It is your responsibility to ensure that your assignment has been submitted correctly.

Deferred Final Examinations

Standing in a course is determined by the course instructor subject to the approval of the Faculty Dean. This means that grades submitted by the instructor may be subject to revision. No grades are final until they have been approved by the Dean.

Additional Information

In accordance with the Carleton University Undergraduate Calendar Regulations, the letter grades assigned in this course will have the following percentage equivalents:

A+ = 90-100	B+ = 77-79	C+ = 67-69	D+ = 57-59
A = 85-89	B = 73-76	C = 63-66	D = 53-56
A- = 80-84	B- = 70-72	C- = 60-62	D- = 50-52
F = Below 50	WDN = Withdrawn from the course		DEF = Deferred

Accommodation for Student Activities

Carleton University recognizes the substantial benefits, both to the individual student and for the university, that result from a student participating in activities beyond the classroom experience. Reasonable accommodation must be provided to students who compete or perform at the national or international level. Please contact your instructor with any requests for academic accommodation during the first two weeks of class, or as soon as possible after the need for accommodation is known to exist. <https://carleton.ca/senate/wp-content/uploads/Accommodation-for-Student-Activities-1.pdf>

Plagiarism

Plagiarism is the passing off of someone else's work as your own and is a serious academic offence. As well, re-using your own work from a different course (or from the same course if you are repeating) is not permitted in the course. For the details of what constitutes plagiarism, the potential penalties and the procedures refer to the section on Instructional Offences in the Undergraduate Calendar.

Students are expected to familiarize themselves with and follow the Carleton University Student Academic Integrity Policy (See <https://carleton.ca/registrar/academic-integrity/>). The Policy is strictly enforced and is binding on all students. Academic dishonesty in any form will not be tolerated. Students who infringe the Policy may be subject to one of several penalties.

The University Academic Integrity Policy defines plagiarism as 'presenting, whether intentionally or not, the ideas, expression of ideas or work of others as one's own.' This includes reproducing or paraphrasing portions of someone else's published or unpublished material, regardless of the source, and presenting these as one's own without proper citation or reference to the original source. Examples of sources from which the ideas, expressions of ideas or works of others may be drawn from include but are not limited to books, articles, papers, literary compositions and phrases, performance compositions, chemical compounds, artworks, laboratory reports, research results, calculations and the results of calculations, diagrams, constructions, computer reports, computer code/software, material on the internet and/or conversations.

Examples of plagiarism include, but are not limited to:

- Any submission prepared in whole or in part, by someone else, including the unauthorized use of generative AI tools (e.g., ChatGPT).

- Using ideas or direct, verbatim quotations, paraphrased material, algorithms, formulae, scientific or mathematical concepts, or ideas without appropriate acknowledgment in any academic assignment.
- Using another's data or research findings without appropriate acknowledgement
- Submitting a computer program developed in whole or in part by someone else, with or without modifications, as one's own.
- Failing to acknowledge sources with proper citations when using another's work and/or failing to use quotations marks.

Plagiarism is a serious offence that cannot be resolved directly by the course's instructor (more information below).

Generative Artificial Intelligence Tools (e.g. ChatGPT)

Students may use AI tools for basic word processing functions, including grammar and spell checking (e.g. Grammarly, Microsoft Word Editor, Copilot). It is not necessary to document the use of AI for the permitted purposes listed. If you have questions about a specific use of AI that isn't listed above, please consult your instructor. For course assignments, any use of generative AI tools to produce assessed content is considered a violation of academic integrity standards. As our understanding of the uses of AI and its relationship to student work and academic integrity continue to evolve, students are required to discuss their use of AI in any circumstance not described here with the course instructor to ensure it supports the learning goals for the course. Note: Students can also access resources related to citing Generative AI on the MacOdrum Library website <https://library.carleton.ca/guides/help/generative-ai-chatgpt-and-citations>

What are the Penalties for Plagiarism?

The Associate Dean of the Faculty follows a rigorous process for academic integrity allegations. A student found to have plagiarized an assignment may be subject to one of several penalties including but not limited to: a grade of zero, a failure or a reduced grade for the piece of academic work; reduction of final grade in the course; completion of a remediation process; resubmission of academic work; withdrawal from course(s); suspension from a program of study; a letter of reprimand.

What are the Procedures?

All allegations of plagiarism are reported to the faculty of Dean of FASS and Management. Documentation is prepared by instructors and departmental chairs. The Dean writes to the student and the University Ombudsperson about the alleged plagiarism. The Dean reviews the allegation. If it is not resolved at this level then it is referred to a tribunal appointed by the Senate.

Policy on Classroom Recording

Unauthorized student recording of classroom or other academic activities (including advising sessions or office hours) is prohibited. Unauthorized recording is unethical and may also be a violation of University policy. Students requesting the use of assistive technology as an accommodation should contact the Paul Merton Centre. Unauthorized use of classroom recordings – including distributing or posting them – is also prohibited. Under the University’s Copyright Policy, faculty own the copyright to instructional materials – including those resources created specifically for the purposes of instruction, such as lectures slides, lecture notes, and presentations. Students cannot copy, reproduce, display, or distribute these materials or otherwise circulate these materials without the instructor’s written permission. Students who engage in unauthorized recording, unauthorized use of a recording, or unauthorized distribution of instructional materials will be referred to the appropriate University office for follow-up.

Statement on Student Mental Health:
