Contract for Professional Services – Development of Online Course (100 hours, School of Social Work, Carleton University)

The School of Social Work at Carleton University is looking for a social work professional with experience working with children and youth to work collaboratively with a faculty member to develop a web-based course on social work with children and youth. This course is intended to reflect a structural approach to social work and provide students with the skills necessary for working with children and youth in a variety of institutional and community-based settings. The course will be delivered as SOWK 2301, “Working with Children and Youth” and will be the sole property of Carleton University.

The successful candidate will work closely with the School of Social Work Undergraduate Supervisor to create engaging and effective course materials. Familiarity with online course structure and pedagogy, and development and learning management systems such as Moodle are an asset. The successful candidate will identify, design and develop appropriate learning materials, visual content and assessment tools for a web-based course.

Applicants should submit a Curriculum Vitae together with a cover letter to the Director of the School of Social Work, at ssw.job.applications@carleton.ca. Application Deadline: Friday, December 14, 2018
