WELCOME TO THE 25TH ANNUAL UNDERHILL GRADUATE STUDENT COLLOQUIUM!

We are thrilled to have had the privilege and responsibility of organizing this year's colloquium and celebrating 25 years of innovative graduate scholarship. Since 1995, Carleton's history department has brought graduate students from across Canada together to share their explorations and build professional connections. This year, we wanted to commemorate this longstanding tradition with current students, faculty, and alumni alike. With your participation and support, we have achieved this milestone, and will see the colloquium into the next 25 years!

This year, we are welcoming Dr. Joshua MacFadyen to Carleton to discuss both his current research and his newly published work. Dr. MacFadyen is a distinguished, innovative academic, currently a Canada Research Chair and Associate Professor in the Applied Communication, Leadership, and Culture program in the Faculty of Arts at the University of Prince Edward Island. His research focuses on the environmental history of food and energy systems, and his latest work studies how the shift from organic to fossil fuels impacted rural communities and ecosystems in Canada. We are looking forward first to his luncheon workshop on history and mapping titled "Average Beasts and Where to Find Them: Mapping Livestock and other Bio-Converters in Canada's Rural Energy Transition." Dr. MacFadyen will also be giving the 25th Underhill Colloquium keynote address, "Flax Americana: The Hemispheric Ripple Effects of a Luxury Commodity in the Global North." We are enormously grateful for his generous participation and willingness to share this important work with us.

Our theme, "Ripples," traces the paths of the stories that we study. We invited students to consider the consequences of historical events and processes, as well as to reflect on their own interventions in researching, writing, and telling these stories. We received an exceptional set of submissions, with panel presentations ranging from historiographical and theoretical analyses to new media production and explorations. Over the years, students at past colloquia have embraced the Underhill as a setting to push against disciplinary boundaries, and its 25th year is no different.

We would like to thank the Frank Underhill Endowment Fund, the Carleton Alumni Association, Migration and Diaspora Studies, the Department of Geography and Environmental Studies, the School of Indigenous Studies and Canadian Studies, and the Carleton University Graduate Students' Association for their generous support of our colloquium. With their help, as well as the immeasurable contributions of Ann Anderson, Joan White, Tanya Schwartz, Dr. John C. Walsh and our dedicated volunteers, we are able to celebrate a quarter-century of graduate scholarship.

We hope that this year's colloquium prompts thoughtful discussion over the next couple of days, and beyond.

BIENVENUE AU 25IÈME COLLOQUE UNDERHILL POUR ÉTUDIANTS DES CYCLES SUPÉRIEURS!

Nous sommes très contentes d'avoir eu le privilège et la responsabilité d'organiser le colloque de cette année et de célébrer vingt-cinq ans d'érudition innovante des étudiants des cycles supérieurs. Depuis 1995, le Département d'histoire de l'Université Carleton a réuni des étudiants de tous les coins du Canada dans le but de partager leurs explorations et de nouer des liens professionnels. Cette année nous voulions commémorer cette tradition de longue date tant avec les étudiants, le personnel enseignant et les anciens. Grâce à votre participation et appui, nous avons pu atteindre cette étape importante et nous irons lancer le colloque dans les prochaines vingt-cinq années!

Cette année, nous accueillons Dr. Joshua MacFadyen à Carleton à discuter de sa recherche actuelle et de son ouvrage qui vient de paraître. Dr. MacFadyen est un universitaire distingué et innovatif, présentement Chaire de recherche du Canada et Professeur associé dans le Programme de communication appliquée, leadership et culture dans la Faculté des lettres de l'Université de l'Île-du-Prince-Édouard. Sa recherche porte sur l'histoire environnementale des systèmes d'alimentation et d'énergie et son travail le plus récent examine comment le transfert des énergies organiques vers les énergies fossiles a touché les communautés rurales et les écosystèmes au Canada. Nous sommes impatients d'assister à son atelier de midi sur l'histoire et la cartographie intitulé « Average Beasts and Where to Find Them: Mapping Livestock and other Bio-Converters in Canada's Rural Energy Transition ». Dr. MacFadyen sera également le conférencier d'honneur du 25ième Colloque Underhill et parlera de « Flax Americana: The Hemispheric Ripple Effects of a Luxury Commodity in the Global North ». Nous sommes énormément reconnaissantes pour sa participation et volonté généreuses de partager ce travail important avec nous.

Notre thème « Répercussions » trace les chemins des histoires que nous étudions. Nous avons invité les étudiants à analyser les conséquences des événements et processus historiques, ainsi que de réfléchir à leurs propres interventions lors de la recherche, la rédaction et au moment de raconter ces histoires. Nous avons reçu une série exceptionnelle de soumissions et les présentations qui vont des analyses historiographiques et théoriques jusqu'à la production et des explorations de nouveaux médias. A travers les années, les étudiants et les colloques antérieurs ont accueilli le colloque Underhill comme un environnement de pousser les frontières disciplinaires, et son 25ième année n'y est pas différente.

Nous souhaitons remercier le Fonds de dotation Frank Underhill, le Fonds d'avancement des anciens de l'Université Carleton, les études sur la migration et la diaspora, le Département de géographie et des études environnementales, l'école des études indigènes et canadiennes, et l'Association des étudiants de cycles supérieurs de l'Université Carleton pour leur soutien généreux de notre colloque. Grâce à leur aide et aux contributions incommensurables d'Ann Anderson, Joan White, Tanya Schwartz, Dr. John C. Walsh et de nos bénévoles dévoués, nous sommes capables de célébrer un quart de siècle d'érudition en études supérieures.

Nous espérons que le colloque de cette année va déclencher des discussions approfondies au cours des deux prochains jours et au-delà.

Nathalie Picard et Cristina Wood

Co-Présidentes du 25ième Colloque Underhill pour étudiants des cycles supérieurs

FRANK HAWKINS UNDERHILL was born in Stouffville, Ontario, in 1889. He completed degrees at the University of Toronto and Oxford University. After serving in the First World War, Dr. Underhill returned to a teaching position at the University of Saskatchewan. In 1927, he began teaching at the University of Toronto, but his 27-year tenure at his alma mater was far from tranquil.

Dr. Underhill was one of this country's earliest intellectual historians. He was also a strident social critic, and many of his writings in the pages of the Canadian Forum and other periodicals were devoted to political commentary. Throughout his career, Dr. Underhill's socialist and anti-Imperial politics raised the ire of both politicians and university administrators. He was a co-founder of the League for Social Reconstruction as well as one of the architects of the Regina Manifesto. Underhill constantly found himself fending off charges of "anti-British" behaviour. His perseverance in his political activities was widely regarded as a victory for the preservation of academic freedom in Canadian universities.

In 1955, Dr. Underhill arrived in Ottawa as the curator of Laurier House. He soon became active in the Carleton community, serving in its Senate and as a Professor of Political Science. Dr. Underhill willed his personal library to Carleton, and upon his death in 1971, the Underhill Reading Room was established within the Department of History. In co-operation with Dr. Blair Neatby, an endowment was inaugurated in memory of Dr. Underhill for the purchase of new books for the Reading Room and for the support of special projects, including this annual graduate student colloquium.

FRANK HAWKINS UNDERHILL est né à Stouffville (Ontario) en 1889. Il obtient ses diplômes de l'Université de Toronto et de l'Université d'Oxford. Après avoir servi durant la Grande Guerre, il reprend son poste d'enseignant à l'Université de la Saskatchewan. En 1927, il commence à enseigner à son alma mater, mais son mandat, qui durera 27 ans, à l'Université de Toronto est loin d'être paisible.

Underhill, un enseignant inspirant, devient l'un des premiers historiens intellectuels du pays. Il est également un critique social véhément et nombreux de ses écrits sont des commentaires politiques publiés dans le magazine Canadian Forum et d'autres revues. Tout au long de sa carrière, la politique socialiste d'Underhill suscite l'exaspération tout autant des politiciens que des administrateurs. En tant que cofondateur de la Ligue pour la reconstruction sociale et l'un des architectes du manifeste de Regina, il se voit souvent devoir se défendre contre les accusations d'avoir un comportement « anti-britannique ». La persévérance de ses activités politiques est à l'origine de ce qui est souvent considéré comme étant une victoire pour la préservation de la liberté académique dans les universités canadiennes.

En 1955, Underhill arrive à Ottawa pour assumer le poste de conservateur de la maison Laurier. Il ne tarde pas à établir des liens avec l'Université Carleton, servant dans son sénat et à titre de professeur de sciences politiques. Underhill a légué sa bibliothèque personnelle à l'Université Carleton et, à son décès en 1971, la salle de lecture Underhill est établie au Département d'histoire de l'Université. Avec la coopération du Dr Blair Neatby, un fonds de dotation (Underhill Reading Room Fund) est inauguré à la mémoire de Dr Underhill, destiné à l'achat de nouveaux ouvrages pour la salle de lecture et au soutien de projets spéciaux, dont ce colloque annuel pour étudiants des cycles supérieurs.

TWEET ALL ABOUT IT!

Do not be alarmed if you see some conference participants making use of their smart phones during the colloquium. Instead, join the #Underhill25 discussion in the Twitterverse!

The organizers of the 25th Annual Underhill Graduate Student Colloquium are committed to making the conference as accessible as possible. Live-tweeting your experience at the conference opens the discussion to a wider network of interested people! To support this initiative, we invite participants to tweet questions, thought-provoking points of discussion, and constructive comments while enjoying their experiences at the conference, under the hashtag #Underhill25.

We encourage those interested in tweeting to keep their devices on silent and to maintain an expected level of discretion, so as to not disrupt our panel participants or other members of the audience enjoying the discussion. We encourage live-tweeters to keep their messages professional, constructive, and respectful of other participants and presenters at the colloquium.

“Average Beasts and Where to Find Them: Mapping Livestock and other Bio-Converters in Canada's Rural Energy Transition”

Dr. Joshua MacFadyen

Historians often point to large scale energy transitions as evidence of societal changes at national and even global scales. For instance, the moment that Western European nations made the transition from wood to fossil fuels is also considered the moment they moved from traditional agrarian to urban industrial societies. However, this fails to explain how agriculture continued to become more productive for many decades without the help of fossil fuels, and recent research in Canada suggests that Maritime farms remained complex traditional energy systems well into the late twentieth century. This talk will consider the geographic locations and historical functions of one of the most important, and relatively overlooked, energy converters in rural Canada - livestock.

Flax Americana: The Hemispheric Ripple Effects of a Luxury Commodity in the Global North

Dr. Joshua MacFadyen

Dr. MacFadyen is a Canada Research Chair and Associate Professor in the Applied Communication, Leadership, and Culture program in UPEI's Faculty of Arts. His research focuses on the environmental history of food and energy systems, and his latest work studies how the shift from organic to fossil fuels impacted rural communities and ecosystems in Canada. Much of this work is conducted in the "GeoREACH Lab," a team and UPEI facility that supports Geospatial Research in Atlantic Canadian History.

Dr. MacFadyen's talk will be followed by closing remarks by Dr. Paul Nelles, Graduate Supervisor, Department of History.
