

WGST 1808 A: Introduction to Feminist Social Transformation

This course introduces students to the ways in which who we are and how our societies see us define our everyday lives. Things such as gender, race, indigeneity, sexuality, ability, age, and class, structure how we relate to our bodies, our communities, our health care, our employment, etc. With a focus on the work of activists, we will also consider the ways in which these realities effect our own lives and how we can challenge the structures of power in our world.

The lectures in this course will be all online asynchronously and the tutorials in this course will be live, either online or face-to-face.
